

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Tuesday, May 26

1998

Clean Propulsion Technologies Focus of Meet Set for June 1-3

The Third Conference on Aerospace Environmental Technology is set for June 1-3 at the Von Braun Center. The conference will bring together the aerospace community to describe, review and critically assess evolving replacement and clean propulsion technologies. Marshall-related programs and technology implementation will be discussed by Center representatives.

OSHA Hearing Conservation Training, 8 and 9:30 a.m. Wed., In Morris

Marshall Archaeologist to Speak At MMA Meeting Thursday

Archaeologist Dr. Thomas Sever with the Global Hydrology and Climate Center at Marshall will speak at the Marshall Management Association luncheon 11:30 a.m. Thursday at the Bevill Center in Huntsville. Sever, who uses NASA space technology to locate lost Mayan cities, will show results of his latest research. Marshall employees, retirees and contractors are invited. Contact: T. Jerry Williams, 4-0295